Let's change the context with a tiny royal-cat story.

A royal cat refuses floors.

It only sits on velvet.

A cat that fancy? Okay...

SAME WORDS. DIFFERENT WORLD.

CONTEXT CREATES NEW POSSIBILITIES.

Change context, change the likely next piece.

throne

In this context, "throne" is a much more likely continuation.

Wow... that makes sense!

CONTEXT TURNS CLUES INTO MEANING.

SAME WORDS. NEW STORIES.

Okay, but show me the cat's tax returns!

I need proof!

Patrick... that's beside the point!

But... it's a cat! Shouldn't it file taxes?!

The lesson isn't about taxes. It's about context. Change context, change the likely next piece.

Same pieces. Different context. A bigger, truer story.
